

Rocket Princess vs. Snaggletooth the Dragon - Sneak Preview

Copyright © 2015 by Kevin T. Johns and Rich Lauzon.

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, distributed or transmitted in any form or by any means, including photocopying, recording, or other electronic or mechanical methods, without the prior written permission of the publisher, except in the case of brief quotations embodied in critical reviews and certain other noncommercial uses permitted by copyright law. For permission requests, write to the publisher, addressed "Attention: Permissions Coordinator," at the address below.

Kevin T. Johns/Cat & Bean Publishing

37 Flowertree Cres.

Kanata, ON K2M 2R8

www.kevintjohns.com

Publisher's Note: This is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents are a product of the author's imagination. Any resemblance to actual people, living or dead, or to businesses, companies, events, institutions, or locales is completely coincidental.

Book design © 2013, BookDesignTemplates.com

Ordering Information: Special discounts are available on quantity purchases by corporations, associations, and others. For details, contact the publisher at the address above or email the author at kevin@kevintjohns.com.

Rocket Princess vs. Snaggletooth the Dragon / Kevin T. Johns – First Edition

ROCKET PRINCESS

vs SNAGGLETOOTH
THE DRAGON

KEVIN T. JOHNS

RICH LAUZON

In the Kingdom of Rocketdonia, every child is given a jetpack on their seventh birthday...

Princess Jillian's jetpack was bright red. She couldn't wait to try it out.

“I'm going to whoom, boom, zoom all through the sky,” she said.

“Of course you will,” said King Kevin, her father. “But not today, you won't. You'll have to wait until tomorrow.”

You see, Princess Jillian's seventh birthday had fallen on a Monday, and there was an ancient rule that no one in the Kingdom of Rocketdonia could use their jetpack on a Monday.

“That rule is ridiculous,” said Princess Jillian.

“Oh, I agree,” said King Kevin, “but rules are rules”.

Then he went and made himself a ham and Swiss cheese sandwich

While the king was busy eating lunch,
Snaggletooth the Dragon attacked
Rocketdonia and started blowing fire everywhere!

This was not the surprise you might think it would be. Snaggletooth was quite aware of the rule about jetpacks on Mondays, so he always attacked Rocketdonia on a Monday.

“He always attacks on Mondays,” said
Princess Jillian.

“He sure does,” agreed one of the castle guards. “I wish we could just fly up there with our jetpacks and stop him, but rules are rules.”

“That rule is ridiculous,” said Princess Jillian, and before anyone could stop her, she ignited her red jetpack, and whoom, boom, zoomed up into the sky...

Enjoyed this preview of Rocket Princess?

Click here to order your copy of the book!

Kevin T. Johns grew up in a small Ontario town, reading comic books, watching horror movies, and playing guitar in punk rock bands. He has authored several fiction novels and instructional writing books, hosts two podcasts on writings, and works as a writing coach and ghostwriter. He lives in Ottawa, Canada, with his wife and three daughters. On the rare occasions that he has the house to himself, he watches horror movies, reads comic books, and plays punk rock songs on his guitar.

<http://www.kevintjohns.com>

Rich Lauzon, a.k.a. Richtoon, teaches and coordinates in the Pre-Animation and Illustration at Algonquin College. He also is the creator of the webcomic SpacePestRemoval.com. He lives in Ottawa Canada with his wife and three daughters. If he is awake, he is drawing.

<http://instagram.com/richtoon/>