

Rocket Princess & the Princess Rocket Squad Sneak Preview!

Kevin T. Johns
& Rich Lauzon

CAT & BEAN PUBLISHING

In the Kingdom of Rocketdonia, everybody had a job . . .

King Kevin's job was to be a king and do kingly things like sit on a throne and create laws using a fancy royal pen.

Princess Alyssa was six years old. Her job was to be a very pretty and proper princess.

Princess Holly was a baby and it was her job to be a baby.

Princess Jillian, however, had an extremely special job. You see, Princess Jillian was a superhero.

When a zombie swamp monster tried to turn Rocketdonia into one big swamp, she sent him packing.

When Grumptoot the Wizard tried to put a spell on Rocketdonia, she broke his wand in half.

When the booger monsters tried to leave boogers all over Rocketdonia, she cleaned them up with one big tissue.

All across the kingdom, the people loved her. She was their protector, and they called her: Rocket Princess.

As she flew through the skies above them, the people would chant, “Rocket Princess, Rocket Princess, we love you! Rocket Princess, Rocket Princess, whoom, boom, zoom!”

One day, while King Kevin was busy doing kingly things — like sitting on his throne and signing papers with a fancy pen — Princess Alyssa approached him.

“I want to be a superhero just like my big sister,” announced Princess Alyssa.

“A superhero?” said King Kevin with a royal chuckle. “Why, that’s ridiculous. Your job is to be a very pretty and proper princess. It’s Princess Jillian’s job to whoom, boom, zoom all over the sky, not yours. You aren’t even old enough for a jetpack yet.”

“But I want to be a superhero,” said Princess Alyssa. “And so does Baby Holly.”

“Baby Holly?” cried King Kevin. “She can’t be a superhero. Baby Holly’s job is to be a baby.”

Princess Alyssa did not agree one bit, but it was her father’s job to be the king, and so he made the laws.

When Bug-a-Borg attacked Rocketdonia the next day, Princess Alyssa watched helplessly as Princess Jillian flew out to face him all alone.

Bug-a-Borg was a giant robot shaped like a bug. He was as tall as a building. When he moved, he made sounds like this: Chirp-Chirp-Zip-Beep!

Princess Jillian whoom, boomed, zoomed right up into Bug-a-Borg's face. "Take a hike, you big bug," she said.

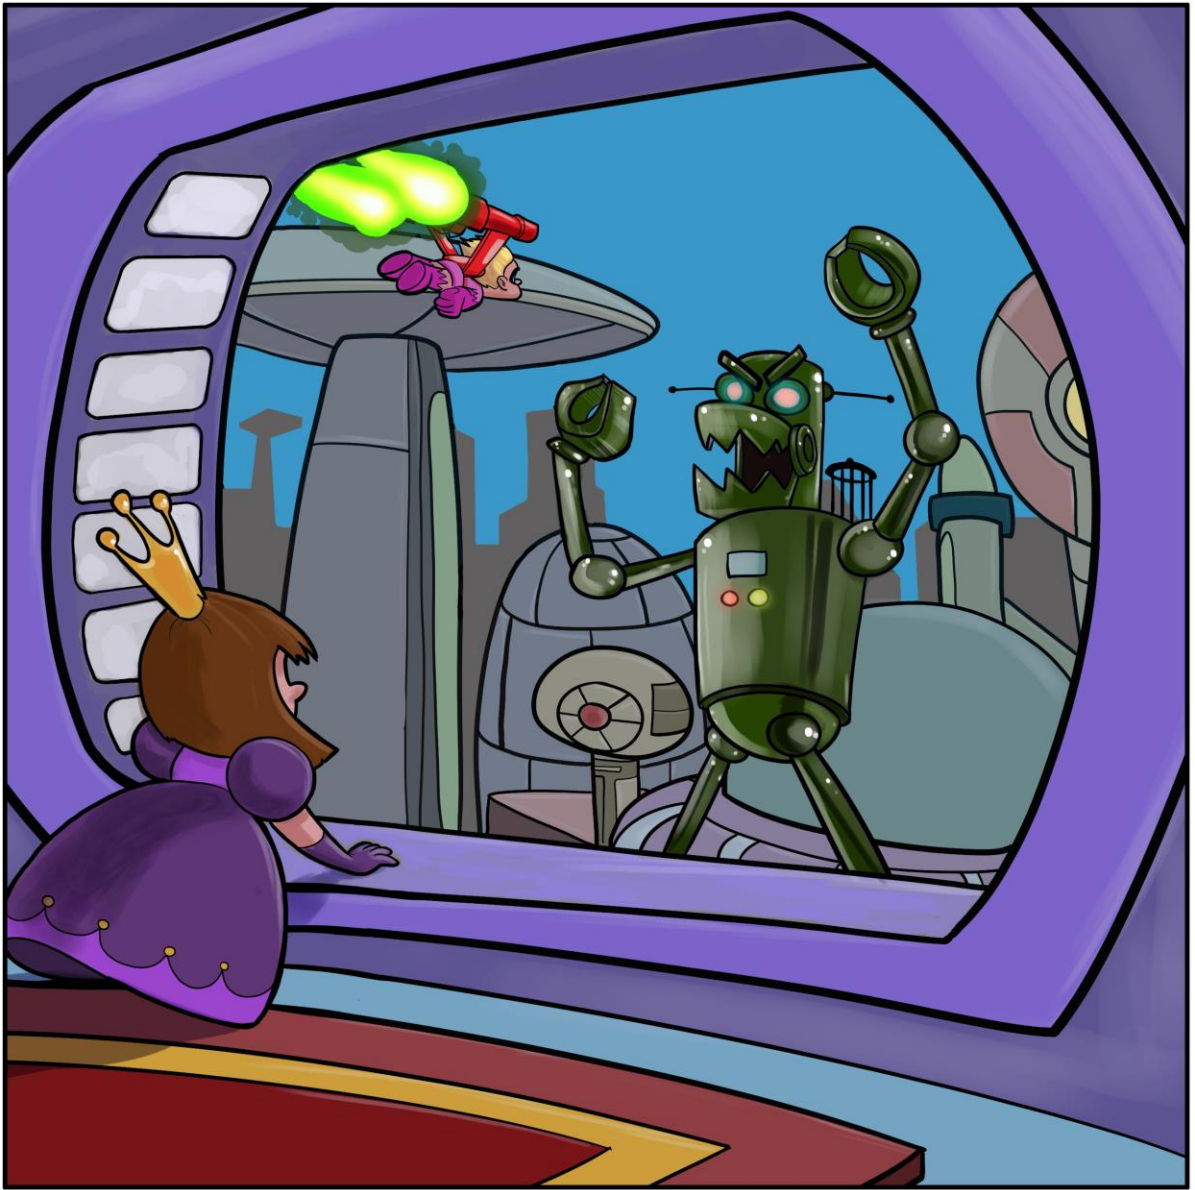

Bug-a-Borg didn't move, so Rocket Princess rolled her fingers up into a fist and popped him right in his robot-bug-faced-nose.

A loud sound rang out — Booooooong! — but Bug-a-Borg didn't move.

Princess Jillian kicked him in the shoulder with all of her strength.

Booooooong! The sound rang out again, but Bug-a-Borg still didn't move.

"Hmmm," said Princess Jillian. "That normally works."

Princess Jillian was trying to decide what to do next when Bug-a-Borg scooped her up in his robot hand and locked her in a cage on his shoulder.

“Hmmm,” said Princess Jillian from within the cage. “This could be trouble.”

“You are — BEEP-ZIP — in big trouble,” confirmed Bug-a-Borg.

Princess Alyssa, Princess Holly, and King Kevin had watched the entire battle from the palace window.

“What are we going to do?” moaned the king. “Princess Jillian is the only superhero in all of Rocketdonia, and she’s been captured. We’re doomed!”

“Give me a jetpack!” said Princess Alyssa. “I can rescue my sister. I can be a superhero too.”

“No, no, no,” said the king, rubbing his chin thoughtfully. “Your job is to be a very pretty and proper princess. We will have to borrow a superhero from another kingdom.”

King Kevin rushed off to the other room to write a letter to the neighbouring kingdom using his fancy pen.

That’s when Princess Alyssa and Princess Holly noticed their father had left his jetpack sitting on the floor next to the throne.

Get your copy of *Rocket
Princess and the Princess
Rocket Squad* now!